

Software Licensing Policy

Introduction This document explains the DGSi licensing policy for software distributed on the Slope Indicator.com website.

DigiPro2 DigiPro2 is software for processing inclinometer data. A trial version of the software is available for download at the Slope Indicator website.

The trial version operates in "advanced" mode for 45 days after installation, so that advanced features of the software can be experienced. After the 45 day trial period, the advanced features are disabled.

DigiPro2 continues to operate in "basic" mode and can be used in this mode on any number of computers with no purchase of a license key.

Continued use of DigiPro2's advanced mode features requires purchase and registration of a license key. The license key enables advanced features for a single computer.

Other Software With the exception of DigiPro2 software above, application programs listed in the download section of Slope Indicator's website are available for to the public free and may be installed on any number of computers.
